Before I entered Architecture class, I wasn't really giving any attention to any building I saw in my life. For a long time I didn't even try to see the beautiful building and know who built it and what is the story behind it. During the classes I discovered how much is fun to know every architecture design in my area and in the world. Many things I learned from this FKL class. I didn't think that I will learn this much from Architecture class. Having said that, Architecture definition has changed after I took this class. Before this class I didn't have any idea the architecture has meaning. As from today architecture for me now is not only a normal building we pass everyday, it's a reflection of how the designer think and live his life. Architecture is involved in every way of life. As I said before, I don't look now to any building or a architecture design as just a piece of rock or material as before. It's a piece of art that hold a beautiful story to be expressed for the public.
