TOPIC: SHOULD SEX OFFENDERS HAVE TO REGISTER WHEN RELEASED FROM PRISON?

Motivation for Research

I think this is an important area to study because it effects society, local surroundings, and people in general. I choose this topic because it is something that has become a big problem in our society and has gotten out of control. It is also something that is unrevealed in families that have been going on for a while that no one knows about. Sex offenders can be both men, women, and children. The death toll has risen just from that incident.

Overall Research Question

I want to find out why is there not a law that has sex offenders register and who oversees making it a law. Why don't they make them register before being released? How does the police keep track of the sex offenders? How long does sex offenders remain on the register? What is the government going to do? Is House arrest good enough? Shouldn't all states have the same law for sex offenders? Should they information be public to the entire world? I will call the state representative and ask advice about sex offenders and do my research.

Approach

I will do research online and at the local library. I will collect data from the state representative. I will also collect names, dates of release, cases, conviction status, addresses, and parole information. Who, what when, and where oversees making this a law. The Research took about 3 days to collect. First, I would make sure that the information that I have collected is correct and up to date. I would also make sure that I have exsorted all my leads and information.

Anticipated Results

It is reported that sex offenders should register, it is also reported on some websites listing the areas where they are located. There should be a law enforced already for this program that has been a problem for years.

Significance of Results

There isn't any excitement for me in this field because there is no law enforced. I mean how long does this have to go on before the government does something? There is no change that has been made in this area because there is no law enforced to make any changes.
